

Sergio Porta

Sergio Porta is Professor of Urban Design, Director of Urban Design Studies Unit and the MScUD, co-Director of the Strathclyde Centre of Urban Policy Planning and Technology at the Department of Architecture, University of Strathclyde, Glasgow. He is founding President of www.BuildingBeauty.org, member of the ISUF (International Seminar of Urban Form) Council, Chair of ISUF Conference 2021, external examiner in UK Universities and advisor to international organisations. He sits in the editorial boards of leading journals in urban science and design and is regularly invited speaker to international conferences. His research is on masterplanning the resilient city, urban form analytics and morphometrics, and radical architectural design. He published over sixty papers on international peer-reviewed journals and two monographs. He is AD Scientific Index Top 100 Scientists 2021 in Europe (Arts, Design and Architecture). His latest book (Riba Publishing, 2020), is entitled “Masterplanning for Change: Designing the Resilient City”.

