

Ya'ara Rosner-Manor

Dr. Architect Ya'ara Rosner-Manor is a professional urban planner, owns a private firm and teaches at the Hebrew University. She is also a post-doc fellow at the school of cities, University of Toronto, as part of the Urban Genome Project. Her work and research is focused on informal urban structures, and especially on mediating between the constraints of formal planning systems and the needs and aspirations of local communities. She is the winner of numerous academic grants and awards, including the Israel Planners Association "Best Researcher" (2013), the President of the State of Israel Scholarship for Innovative Scientific Research (2015), and the Israel Planners Association 'Most influential Planners' (2021).

